FOREWORD

A specialized interest develops a vocabulary and an attitude of mind all its own, as anyone listening in on random conversations between Doctors and Lawyers can readily testify. The same is obviously true of coin collectors. Nevertheless, money is a subject of such universal interest that the average person might be presumed to have enough basic knowledge to look at a coin and describe what he sees, even though he is not familiar with numismatic terms. Such an assumption, reasonable though it appears on the surface, does not seem to be a valid one, as Coin Galleries has every reason to know. One example out of many should suffice to demonstrate the point and give the collector an idea of the type of telephone problem that crops up at the Galleries several times a week.

On a recent occasion we found ourselves in conversation with an educated voice who informed us that he had seen a gold 50 Franc piece of Napoleon III in a Dealer's window. He had found one in his possession and wanted to know its probable value. He quite realized it would be difficult to give an accurate estimate over the phone, so he was only asking for a very general idea of the sale value of the coin. Since the caller anticipated all our possible objections to giving blind information of this kind we were tempted to be helpful. First, by instinct, we asked him to describe the piece. It was certainly gold, he said. On one side was a plain head of the Emperor. On the other was an Eagle with the words, "Dix Centimes." With more apparent patience than we felt, we explained that he did not have a gold 50 Franc piece but a bronze 10 Centime piece of no value whatever. The caller was pained. He was sure it was gold because he'd polished it up and it looked just like gold. The conversation thereafter was not unduly prolonged.

What the moral of this tale is, we are not quite sure. There should be more than one. That an alarming percentage of the general public cannot use its eyes as a means of conveying accurate information of any kind to the mind is clear enough. But there is another aspect of the matter which ought to be of interest to Washington, but probably isn't. We hear a great deal these days about the importance of the National Gold Reserve. The Federal authorities, however, regard individual ownership of gold in any form other than "numismatic items" with an almost hysterical disapproval. No other major Nation in the world, except the Soviet Union, adopts the same policy. One result of their attitude is that the average citizen can't tell the difference between gold and polished copper or brass. The Costume Jewelry industry may also be partly to blame because of its tremendous output of shoddy ornaments plated with "genuine 14 carat gold". The Founding Fathers must be turning in their graves.

With these thoughts in mind we will direct your attention to the consignments in the Coin Galleries Spring Mail Bid Sale. The first two consignments, while offering very few pieces, make up in quality what is lacking in quantity. You will find a nice Stater of Alexander, a superb example of the Augustalis of Frederick II and a Pound Sovereign of Elizabeth I, all in "genuine real gold". In addition there are two superb examples of the Judean Shekels of the First and Second Revolts. A broader selection of choice Ancients will be found in later consignments.

The offering of U. S. Coins is rich in Half Dollars, but there are other odds and ends of possible interest to the collectors of our own National series. The consignment of Canadian Coins is lavish in quantity and should give every collector a chance to pick up specimens of the denominations he needs, either singly or in lots. There are also plenty of Canadian Tokens. The selection of Gold Coins of the World from Ancient to Modern Times is very broad and is backed by an equally broad selection of silver.

The material listed under Oriental Coins covers a wider area than the word "Orient" is generally considered to indicate. You will find pieces from the Middle East, Africa and the Pacific as well as the Orient proper. The Spanish and Latin American consignment is divided between gold and silver. While there are some interesting gold coins, the silver section contains some nice Dollars of various kinds that are not often easy to find. They should attract the discriminating connoisseur of this series.

We can also call the reader's attention to the Swedish and Russian consignment which contains many unusual and attractive pieces seldom seen today. Finally the genuine collector who likes to have fun with quantities of coins will find ample scope for his interests among the Large Lots in Consignment Thompson at the end of the Sale.

In closing we can say that our next Mail Bid Auction will take place in the Autumn. Of course we are both willing and able to schedule a Sale at almost any time if the material is available. If you or your friends are considering disposing of a collection of any size we would like to hear from you. It can be added that our Staff is as competent to catalogue and handle fine Ancients and Foreign coins as that of any Firm in this country. This means that your material will receive the attention it deserves at the Galleries.

While we have traditionally run a "Mail Bid Sale" it does not follow that we are unwilling to run a Public Auction if the size and quality of any Collection so warrants. The Collector should realize one rather obvious fact about any Sale. The majority of Bids received are by mail no matter whether it is "Mail Bid" or not. Except in the case of really unusual offerings in the U. S. Series, the average successful Bidder is a man from too far out of town to attend the Sale in person anyway. In this sense almost all auctions are largely "Mail Bid."

THE NUMISMATIC REVIEW

The next issue of the Numismatic Review, Vol. III No. 2, will be ready during April. The Review, published by Coin Galleries, is a magazine that combines interesting numismatic articles and editorial comment with a fixed price list of coins in the Ancient and European series. There are six issues a year distributed to a limited number of subscribers. The annual subscription fee is $3.50 for domestic surface mail.

586	George III. Guinea, 1774. 1st Bust by T. Pingo. The so-called "Rose Guinea". Extra Fine, but with light bag marks, like a new Canadian Dollar.	(30.00)

This and the following coins are dated in the period of the American Revolution. They are exactly the type of Guinea that were the wheels on which the British Army in North America moved between 1774 and 1783. Traditionally, these pieces should be classed as the most popular early American coin. Good Patriots fell over themselves to supply the British with food and drink in order to get them. All the specimens offered here show slight signs of bag marks.

593	Guinea, 1782. Choice Very Fine.	(27.50)
594	The Spade Guinea, 1787. Choice Very Fine, but with slight bag marks.	(30.00)

If the previous type of Guinea is closely associated with our Revolution, the Spade type may be considered England's "secret weapon" with which she beat Napoleon. These coins kept Wellington's Army afloat in Spain and the Fleet on ceaseless patrol at sea. A quantity of them were found in Lord Nelson's purse after Trafalgar. All of them show slight bag marks that do not mar the pieces.
